

An American Dream:

Our company was founded by two ambitious young men (George and Rick) and their goal to build innovative high quality anatomic pathology equipment. Having many years of experience in the sales, engineering and manufacturing of pathology and autopsy equipment would be to their advantage. Their experience did prove to be their biggest advantage but the lack of money proved to be the biggest hurdle. They worked in a very small office where they shared a desk and brought their home computers to the office. Rick and George often traveled the country in a rented panel van demonstrating our only pieces of equipment for weeks at a time often wondering if they had enough money to get home. Their vision has moved our company from a shared office, working out of their garages to a condemned building they spent their free time renovating so they could eventually show their 7 employees our new facility. Their vision did not stop there, we continued to expand our product line by offering equipment that was designed with the end user in mind. What is better for you? We asked at every encounter with our customers. How can we make it better? What will make your job easier? As our engineering and manufacturing capabilities increased we were able to provide better products. As we listened more to our customer's needs our products were designed with more features that improved their work environment. With the ever increasing demand for our premium products we moved again and expanded our facility to 60,000 square feet employing 75 employees. Their "American Dream" has grown from a small 2 person company to a company that truly delivers a better product earning us the motto "The Better Products People".
